THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Welcome to our new Society!

Long an elusive dream, the Society of Paper Money Collectors is now a reality. Conceived at the 1961 A.N.A. convention last August, the Society has grown to the present membership of 343. The "Poor relation" of numismatics has finally begun to "walk."

Last week a merger between the Society of Paper Money Collectors and the World Paper Money Collectors was consummated. This merger is not, as yet, reflected in our membership rolls. I am quite sure many more members may be counted as a result of this merger.

This your Society. What it can and will be depends upon you. No one person can do it alone. Much has already been accomplished. Much more needs to be done. Our aims are presented elsewhere in the journal. How successful we are will be the direct result of the efforts we spend in attempting to reach these goals.

This can, indeed, be a "New World of Currency."

HANK BIECIUK

Book Reviews

TEXAS CONFEDERATE COUNTY NOTES AND PRIVATE SCRIP, by Hank Bieciuk and H. G. "Bill" Corbin, 1961. Published by the authors, 112 pp., stiff paper covers, 171 illus., $2.95.

Quoting from the introduction, "While the field of obsolete currency has grown by leaps and bounds during the past few years, the growth of information on this subject has been noticeably negligible. This book, by no means complete, represents the first complete listing of all known Texas county, city and private scrip notes."

The above statement is true, in spite of at least two books and the listing of notes by states in several magazines during the last five years. The authors have cataloged notes of ninety-one counties, five cities, and fifty-five individuals and business firms, with rarity indication of each and illustrations of many. Pricing is accomplished by giving a price range for each rarity number—thus rarity 3 is priced at $7.50 to $10.00, while rarity 10 (the scarcest) is $50 to $150. Possibly to satisfy those who look at the ending of a book before reading the contents, the rarity listing is on the final printed page.

This book is a real contribution to the literature on what may be termed "necessity" money of the Civil War period. Those interested in paper money, Americana, and the history of Texas should acquire the book, but with the knowledge that it does not include issues of the Republic and State of Texas—Glenn S.

CRISWELL'S CURRENCY SERIES, VOLUME II, CONFEDERATE AND SOUTHERN STATE BONDS, by Grover C. Criswell, Jr., and Clarence L. Criswell, 1961, illustrated, $10.00.

Collectors of "fiscal paper" of the Confederacy and Southern States, and students of the Civil War period in general will welcome this new book. It is well known that Criswell's has been acquiring such material and compiling related information for quite a few years. Since records relating to the financial operations of the Confederacy are

"Underdog" Status of Paper Money, by Fred Marckhoff

EXHIBITS AT CONVENTIONS

This status of being an "underdog" is nothing new to the collector of paper money. It is evident at the meetings of the coin club, where he is usually outnumbered by 20 to 1, or even more. It is evident in the stocks of dealers, many of whom handle no paper money of any kind. So it is only natural that the same sort of condition exists when a paper money collector brings his collection for exhibit at a convention.

Seldom granted more than one category in spite of the many classifications, each type of paper money must compete against the other. Judging must be made among dissimilar objects, rather than similar ones. Is an excellent display of greenbacks better than an excellent display of colonials, or obsolete notes, or fractional currency? How is the decision made? Is it based on the monetary value of the material? Is it based on the gaudy, multi-colored beauty of the material? Or is it based on the judge's experience and appreciation of one type of paper currency more than another? All of these factors as well as others must enter into the judging picture, false as they are, if the usual normal processes of comparing like objects cannot be followed.

The second downgrading of a paper currency exhibit occurs in the usual actions of the judges through no personal fault of their own. To begin with, they are almost exclusively coin collectors, with the exceptions of the A. N. A. convention and the larger regional conventions. His general experience in coins is presumed to be sufficient to get by in the usual one category of paper money, despite his almost total lack of knowledge on this subject. To many, and possibly the judge himself, this single category of "Paper Money" is a relatively unimportant category anyway.

How could he appreciate or even understand the numismatic value of a collection of paper 25 years in the making and perhaps complete, or almost complete, if he does not appreciate or understand the material itself? To such a judge a few rare large gold coins would no doubt receive a higher grading in his rating system. Perhaps the inclusion of points for the completeness of a collection in its own field would mean a fairer break to the really hard-to-put-together collection. It would be a necessity if the Paper Money exhibit is ever going to win a Best of Show Award. It would also eliminate the possibility of 7 or 8 coins from one country, attractively presented, from winning over an uncirculated complete set of Liberty Standing quarters, the former collected in a few years at most, the latter at least a ten year collecting effort. This actually occurred at one of the conventions.

Because of the diversified nature of the problem, concerned as it is with many different people in many different places, its remedy is not an easy one.

In addition to increasing the number of paper money categories, another corrective approach could be attained if certain experts in each field, including Paper Money, were appointed Certified or Approved A. N. A. Judges, qualified to judge in their category at any Convention they attend. It would immediately improve the uniformity and standard of the Awards, and give a prestige to the Convention itself. It would be a definite boon to Paper Money collectors as "one of their own" would be judging their exhibits.

Perhaps an even more satisfactory solution would be a "Paper Money Convention." An ultimate goal of unrestricted exhibit space for paper money collectors should be not considered unreasonable. It may become a reality within the next five years, now that our Society is organized and makes this one of our eventual aims.

What a thrill to the specialist it would be to see 5 or more of the best collections of their specialty on exhibit, be it fractional currency, greenbacks, colonials, obsolete notes, foreign notes, military scrip, etc., on display at the same time and place.

How soon will these possible goals be reached?

Foreign Paper Money Classics, by Dwight Musser

The word classic can be used in different ways, as can many other words in the English Language. It is used here, as one dictionary puts it, to mean "of the highest order." In the fields of literature, architecture and art, as well as in philatelics and numismatics, there are some generally accepted classics which are well known to those intimately acquainted with the subjects and to some extent to the public. Since the systematic collection and study of foreign paper money has become a recognized branch of numismatics, it would seem appropriate that some steps be taken to define and recognize the classics in this area.

This is not to imply that some expert or official committee be commissioned to formulate a list of foreign paper money classics. Classics in any field are not proclaimed, dictated, legislated or decreed, but rather they earn the status of a classic by what they are and how they are accepted, respected and remembered.

Time is almost always an element in determining a classic. It would be unwise to hastily recognize some classics in a field that was in its infancy. (Sometimes classics are the first of their kind, but in many cases their significance is not grasped until the passage of time has emphasized their importance.) But sufficient time has elapsed to at least suggest that some "high order" specimens of foreign paper money are worthy of consideration as either being or becoming classics.

Extensive knowledge is another factor that cannot be overlooked. This simply means that many people must have a wide acquaintance with a subject before attempting to decide which works or objects are of the highest order. Without suggesting that either individually or collectively everything is known about foreign paper money, it does seem that enough is known to begin at least selecting some candidates for the world paper money hall of fame.

Foreign paper money classics would not necessarily be selected or recognized on the basis of their appearance or craftsmanship. It is possible that a note might become a classic because of some unusually striking design, but not likely as this is primarily a matter of individual taste. There are so many notes that are skillfully engraved and beautifully printed that classic craftsmanship is commonplace. It could be pointed out here that the great philatelic classic, the unique British Guiana stamp, is about as unattractive to the eye as anything could be.

What, then, is involved in considering some classics in the field of foreign paper money? Certainly historical importance would be one thing. Some of the extremes might be another—extremes in size, denomination, age or perhaps in design. It should be emphasized that a classic is not necessarily a rarity, but a rarity most likely will be a classic.

And it is here, in determining which foreign bills are the most rare, that collectors can do the most, working together, to find out which notes should be considered classics because of rarity. This should not be a laborious process of taking endless counts and inventories. Actually it should be a lot of fun. Why cannot we begin by having collectors list what they think are some of their rarest notes? The list should be small, say not over three items, consisting of the notes the collector believes to be the rarest in his collection. These nominations could be compiled and circulated among several of the most knowledgeable students of foreign paper money. They would doubtless recognize some as obviously not rare and could so indicate. The list should contain some however that would be likely prospects for highest honors. An all out attempt could then be made to publicize the candidates and to challenge the entire numismatic field to prove that the selections are not truly rare.

This process should result in discovering what are some genuinely rare specimens and would probably reveal the existence of a few unique notes as well. If this sounds like something worthy of our time and energy, if you would like to see such a project carried out, let your wishes, as well as your suggestions be known.

—Dwight L. Musser

incomplete and often vague, a careful study of the extant bonds was of prime importance in compiling such a book.

Besides a 310-page descriptive and illustrated listing of the bonds of the Confederacy (including four counterfeit and one bogus), bonds of twelve southern states, the Territory of Florida and the Republic of Texas, the book contains a two-page preface and five pages of color plates of typical bonds. Each bond listed is given a rarity number and current market values are furnished on a supplemental sheet.

The book is printed on high-quality paper and has durable and attractive board covers. Illustrations are large enough to permit reading nearly all the text of most bonds. This reviewer notes one technical error which does not detract from the value of the book. In frequent cases, a simple framed portrait on a bond is referred to as a "vignettte," which Webster defines as "any picture which shades off gradually." We are pleased to note that most portraits are identified and the producers of the bonds named.—Glenn S.
